

WHAT IS IT?

'Give me a Break" Zooming in education can be tiring and redundant. Kids need to break away from the day to day practices that virtual learning has created. I could see my students disconnecting and not really interested in the lesson I was teaching, which was our Dairy Unit. I was teaching from home that day, and because I live on two acres, I decided to take them on a " virtual field trip" and show them my farm animals.

IMPACT?

Happy, Healthy, curious, and engaging some of my students had never seen a goat or a donkey and this was certainly a great way to teach an Agriculture Lesson. I was able to share a part of my life with my students and connected us with who I am as a person. This helped give students a brain break and build community.
